

TinQa Founder Meeting Kit - Stone Manufacturing

Purpose: Evaluate workshops, build long-term partnerships, and collect comparable information. Goal of first visit is NOT to negotiate aggressively; it is to identify the best manufacturing partner.

1. Meeting Agenda

Introduce yourself, show the product vision, understand the workshop, discuss capabilities, ask pricing, explain roadmap (1 prototype → 5 demo units → 20-50 units in future), thank them.

2. Elevator Pitch

"I am building a premium decor product called TinQa. I am looking for a long-term stone manufacturing partner. We will begin with one prototype. If quality is good, I will place 5 demo orders and later scale production."

3. Questions

• Years in business? • Number of artisans? • Which stone is best for realistic mountains? • Can you carve from photos/3D reference? • Can you reproduce the same design repeatedly? • Prototype lead time? • Capacity per month? • Packaging? • Replacement policy? • Prototype / 5 / 20 / 50 piece pricing?

4. Observe Quietly

Cleanliness, finished products, consistency, modern tools, communication, confidence, willingness to discuss problems instead of saying yes to everything.

5. Negotiation

Do not negotiate on the first meeting. Collect 3-5 quotations. Ask what quantity unlocks their best pricing. Focus on quality and repeatability.

6. Never Reveal

Software architecture, electronics, BOM cost, retail price, profit margins, future roadmap, investor discussions.

7. Vendor Score (10 each)

Quality, Communication, Capacity, Price, Trust, Packaging, Delivery, Flexibility, Experience, Overall Recommendation.

8. Next Steps

Request quotation, exchange WhatsApp, ask for sample timeline, confirm follow-up date, send reference drawings later.
